*"A remarkable performance,
one which confounds their reputation as theatrical ironists and confirms that behind the greasepaint lurks genuine emotion"*

Take a trip into the Devil's ~~background~~ where temptation and sin await as the Grammy nominated godfathers of alternative cabaret perform from their new albums.

One of the most provocative and genre-defying bands you could come across, the world of The Tiger Lillies is dark, peculiar and varied, with moments of deep sadness, cruel black humour and immense beauty. Mixing pre-war Berlin cabaret with anarchic opera and gypsy music, their songs echo the voices of Bertolt Brecht and Jacques Brel.

Performing all over the world with their most recent shows 'Poe's Haunted Palace' and 'Corrido de la Sangre' the band has collaborated with circus performers and Shakespearean actors; experimental dancers and avant-garde photographers; burlesque puppeteers and classical music ensembles, winning an Olivier Award for their West End musical Shockheaded Peter along the way. The band perform for the first time at Wilton's - the oldest existing music hall in London.

“This delicious dark cabaret is Kurt Weill as scripted by Aleister Crowley, and the execution is impeccable throughout. Phenomenal”

★★★★★ THE GUARDIAN

“Just get a ticket by hook or by crook, if there's any left (which I doubt) and catch them while you can”
